HOME RULE.

THE IRISH PARTY NOT PRESSING THE MEASURE IN THE PRESENT PARLIAMENT.

Parliament Not Likely to Accept a Cabinet Office—Mr. Gladstone's Position—The Balance—Peace Not Yet Assured—France's Treaty of Peace with Madagascar—Foreign News.

Special Cablegram to the Post-Dispatch.
LONDON, January 30.—While every one is discussing the possibility of Parnell being offered the chief secretaryship for Ireland and whether he would accept it, a French member, a Scotch member, took the simple course of asking Parnell himself. "Would you?" he said to the latter in the house after the defeat of the government. "Under any circumstances, accept the offer of the chief secretaryship?" Parnell's reply was: "Certainly not. To administer any law as honest man must be in sympathy with it, and believe it to be just, right, law. Now, I am not in sympathy with the English rule of Ireland, but believe it to be both unjust in itself and prompted by alien feelings. Believing this, under no possible circumstances would I have part or lot in the administration of it." This conversation is told me by the Scotch member himself. Apart from this it is quite certain that the least symptom of Parnell going over to the government would produce a tremendous excitement in the Irish parliamentary ranks, where the jealousies between several men equal in ability and ambition are restrained by the overwhelming force of Parnell's personality. Irish members with whom I have discussed this could hardly conceal their anger at the mere suggestion. With regard to the ATTITUDE OF THE IRISH PARTY I have every reason to believe that it is not their wish specially to press home rule in this parliament. They see that it is probably an absolute impossibility for Gladstone, with all the will in the world, to secure any decent measure of it without a dissolution. Moreover, the state of Ireland is growing so desperate that, unless some steps are taken instantly for the relief of the tenantry, it will be extremely difficult even for Parnell himself to keep them in hand, therefore, I believe the Irish party should have boldly announced an Irish policy in the queen's speech and taken a division boldly on the crisis of law and order and the integrity of the empire. Great rage reigns among the younger members of the party, and the disunion of the party is a fact. A large number of Irish members have received leave of absence for a fortnight. Salisbury has not been well lately, and has been unable to transact the foreign office business.

The Balkans.
Special Cablegram to the Post-Dispatch.
LONDON, January 30.—There are no signs of quietude in Greece, nor anything more than waiting to see what Gladstone does. Admiral Lord Salisbry has now received definite instructions, signed by Lord Salisbury, to employ force against the Greeks, should they attack the Turks, no matter where. The Continental opinion strongly prophesies war. If the war party in Greece is triumphant, the king will probably retire ultimately in favor of his son, the duke of Sparta, born a Greek and popular. If the peace party wins, internal troubles are almost certain.

THE KING OF GREECE DISGRACED.
LONDON, January 30.—The "Times" of this morning contains telegrams that the king of Greece has become tired of the politics of the Athenians and especially of their present-bellie, the king of Greece. The Continental opinion strongly prophesies war. If the war party in Greece is triumphant, the king will probably retire ultimately in favor of his son, the duke of Sparta, born a Greek and popular. GARLAND'S LETTER.

THE DEMOCRATIC SENATORS APPROVE THE PRESIDENT'S COURSE.

Sherman's Silver Bill Severely Criticized—Senator Platt's Open-Session Resolution—The Colnege Committee's Position—The Port Moresby and an Interesting Report—Washington News.

WASHINGTON, D. C., January 30.—The Democratic senators met in caucus to-day at 10 o'clock and adjourned at 1:45 o'clock. They discussed the pending issue between the executive and the senate fully, and unanimously adopted the following resolution, which the secretary of the caucus was authorized to make public:

Resolved, That we approve the views and action of the president communicated to the senate through Attorney-General Garland in his letter of January 29, 1888, and that we cordially support the executive therein.

The letter of the president was received by the president of the senate yesterday and was seen by the senators, but as there was no executive session it was not formally laid before that body.

Sherman's Silver Bill.
By Telegram to the Post-Dispatch.
WASHINGTON, D. C., January 30.—It is surprising to see with what unanimous disapproval Senator Sherman's compromise silver measure has been received. Eastern men condemn it because they say the government has no more right to purchase and store up silver than it has to purchase pig iron or other commodities. It is because they propose to stop the coinage of silver.

Senator Platt's Open-Session Resolution.
By Telegram to the Post-Dispatch.
WASHINGTON, D. C., January 30.—Senator Platt's resolution to open the senate to the public sessions was the absorbing topic last evening. Senator Platt has not been known as an advocate of open discussions, and his action in this respect is a surprise. It is the result of an understanding among the Republican senators, although Mr. Platt may have one or two followers.

THE COLNEGE COMMITTEE'S POSITION.
By Telegram to the Post-Dispatch.
WASHINGTON, D. C., January 30.—Ex-Gov. McCreary, a member of the house coinage committee, said to the Post-Dispatch correspondent last evening: "I can say positively that the coinage committee will not oppose the suspension of coinage. Some of them are in favor of unlimited coinage, but a majority are opposed to a suspension of coinage. The committee will not oppose the suspension of coinage."

Last night Joe Gandy, the well-known middle-weight, and Dan Daly, the champion light-weight of St. Louis, sparred six rounds, Queensberry rules, 300 a side, four-ounce soft gloves, points to count. When the time arrived for the set-to, quite a number of men interested in the art of self-defense gathered in the hall in which the affair took place. There was the usual crowd of "sports" on hand, and they were not particular in the remarks which they passed about and to each other as well as about and to the boxers who occupied the stage. Before the event of the evening was called the manager announced that Mr. "Gypsy" Miles, who stood up four rounds before John L. Sullivan, and Mr. Charley Daly would spar the audience by sparring three rounds. The men stepped on the platform, went to their corners and were ready for the first round.

Hot Fight with Gloves Last Night—Some Hard Slugging by "Gypsy" Miles and Charley Daly—Daly Wins in the Third Round—Daly and Joe Gandy Fight to a Draw in Six Times Rounds.

Last night Joe Gandy, the well-known middle-weight, and Dan Daly, the champion light-weight of St. Louis, sparred six rounds, Queensberry rules, 300 a side, four-ounce soft gloves, points to count. When the time arrived for the set-to, quite a number of men interested in the art of self-defense gathered in the hall in which the affair took place. There was the usual crowd of "sports" on hand, and they were not particular in the remarks which they passed about and to each other as well as about and to the boxers who occupied the stage. Before the event of the evening was called the manager announced that Mr. "Gypsy" Miles, who stood up four rounds before John L. Sullivan, and Mr. Charley Daly would spar the audience by sparring three rounds. The men stepped on the platform, went to their corners and were ready for the first round.

Mr. O'Neill offered the following:

This is a vertical, high-contrast black and white image. It features a dark, textured strip running vertically down the center, which appears to be the spine or binding of an old book. The texture is rough and weathered, with visible grain and some lighter patches. To the left of this strip is a light, textured background, and to the right is a darker, more uniform background. At the bottom right corner, there is a small, light-colored triangular shape, possibly a piece of paper or a corner of a page. The overall image has a grainy, aged quality.

This image shows a blank, aged, cream-colored page, likely an endpaper or flyleaf of a book. The paper has a slightly textured appearance with some minor discoloration and faint creases. A dark, irregular tear or hole is visible along the right edge, and a faint, diagonal line is visible near the bottom left corner.
